- C) He is one of those rare consultants who one can rely on to give absolutely fair and honest advice.
- D) Consultants of any calibre can always be counted on to advise in a balanced and professional manner.
- E) Fair and unbiased advice is what one expects from a consultant of his calibre, but one only rarely gets it.
65. He is recovering only slowly from the operation; apparently progress is being hindered by family problems.
- A) Since family problems are upsetting him, the recovery process after surgery will naturally be rather slow.
- B) He isn't recovering from the operation as fast as we had hoped since he is worrying about the family.
- C) It seems that the process of recovery after surgery is being slowed down by family problems.
- D) Obviously the recuperation period after surgery will be a long one as he is worried about his family.
- E) Family worries are, of course, partly responsible for his inability to recover quickly from the operation.

66. It has been argued that people from the Far East are better educated than Westerners and also more experienced in economic development
- A) Since education in the West is not up to the standard of that in the Far East, an equal appreciation of economic matters is not to be expected.
- B) Apparently, people in the Far East pay more attention to education than do those in the West and have a better understanding of economic matters.
- C) Now that people in the Far East are better educated than most Westerners, their ideas regarding economic matters are more sophisticated.
- D) The argument is that the better education received in the Far East gives people there a better grasp of economic development than is possible in the West.
- E) The point has been made that people in the West don't get as good an education as do those in the Far East, and further, are less accomplished in matters concerning economic development.
67. This documentary focuses on the joys and pressures that inevitably accompany the bringing up of a disabled child.
- A) As is pointed out in the film, pain and pleasure are both to be experienced in caring for a crippled child.
- B) In this feature film we are shown the trials and pleasures that people with an abnormal child experience.
- C) The film highlights the pain and the pleasure inherent in the task of bringing up a deformed child.
- D) The delights and strains that one is bound to encounter when caring for a handicapped child are at the heart of this documentary.
- E) The documentary shows how trials and rewards are equally forthcoming when one is caring for an irrational child.

68. It's hardly surprising that inflation has been a paramount issue in so many recent election campaigns.

- A) It is interesting that it has been the issue of inflation that has dominated all the election campaigns recently.
- B) Inflation was naturally going to be a dominant issue in a large number of election campaigns over recent years.
- C) It was to be expected that the crucial issue in all the election campaigns should have been inflation.
- D) Understandably, the majority of election campaigns in recent times have centered round one major issue, inflation.
- E) During recent years, most election campaigns have undoubtedly made inflation the predominant issue.

69. If there is any likelihood of an attack on our position, precautionary measures should be taken immediately.

- A) Our position is well-protected against attack but we must maintain our defences.
- B) In the event of an attack our position will be fiercely contested.
- C) In the unlikely event of an attack, our position will naturally be defended.
- D) Should the position be attacked it will be defended at all costs.
- E) Should an attack seem probable, our position must be safeguarded at once.

70. Greg: What are the advantages of digital photography over the traditional one?

Brian: Well, you can see the image almost instantaneously on the camera's display.

Greg: _____

Brian: You certainly can. And that, of course, is another advantage. You can try again as often as you like.

- A) And if you don't like it, can you get rid of it?
- B) How can you put pictures onto a web site?
- C) How difficult are they to operate? Do you think I could use one?
- D) Is it possible to get good close-ups with a digital camera?
- E) Do I need a computer to print my digital photos?

71. Dick: What are you doing? That's children's TV you are watching!

Pam: I know it is. it's a noisy, happy contest between two schools. But it's also putting across some good lessons.

Dick: _____

Pam: They are stressing the importance of concentration. Before showing a short film they told both teams to concentrate hard so they would remember all the details and be able to answer the questions.

- A) Why not? Are you sure it's worth watching?
- B) Are the children learning those lessons?
- C) You're quite right! It really is noisy!
- D) Yes. TVs potential as an education aid should be exploited.
- E) Give me an example.

72. Jenny: It seems that every magazine I pick up has something to say about obesity.

Molly: _____

Jenny: True. But all this shouting about it isn't altering the trend.

Molly: It may start to do so soon. Be patient!

- A) Apparently the incidence of obesity has been rising rapidly in Japan, too, in recent years.
- B) Does it? I wasn't aware of the fact.
- C) Yes, I've noticed that too. But I suppose we should be made aware of the fact that it is on the increase.
- D) I didn't know that. But an article I read the other day suggested that it's not what we eat but how much we eat that affects our weight.
- E) That could be. The French eat much smaller portions of everything than the Americans do.

73. Greg: I see Japanese banks are suddenly giving a lot of details about their plans to deal with bad debts.

Frank: Really? I wonder why.

Greg: _____

Frank: Could be. Certainly they need to take some drastic measures if they are to improve the financial situation.

- A) I don't think we should look for an explanation.
- B) It's possibly in response to the government's threat to intervene.
- C) They've recently been under attack from all sorts of quarters.
- D) I've no idea. Have you?
- E) Change does not necessarily mean a change for the better.

74. Pat: I like this book review; it's refreshingly honest!

James: I think I know the one you mean. The book is about stress and how to avoid it, isn't it?

Pat: _____

James: Yes. No originality but it's beautifully expressed!

- A) Actually, to be fair, in the review, we're also told that, quote, "It's as comprehensive as anything you'll find outside of a medical textbook".
- B) Why did you read it?
- C) Everyone is talking about stress these days, and how to avoid it; but honestly I don't think anyone can.
- D) Right. And we're told the advice can be summed up as, quote, "Eat sensibly, exercise regularly, and try to avoid difficult situations".
- E) Nowadays people experience stress; in the old days we all used to worry too much.

75. Alison: Now doesn't this sound fascinating! In the middle of Bristol city center they've set up a living rain forest.

Sally: Are you sure you've read it right?

Alison: _____

Sally: Then let's go. It's in easy reach of London.

- A) Why don't you read it for yourself?
- B) Quite sure. And there are more than 150 animal species there.
- C) I'm not sure that I believe it myself!
- D) I've always wanted to see a rain forest. I wonder how big it is.
- E) Do you think it might be worth a visit?

During the past few decades four East Asian economies - South Korea, Taiwan, Singapore and Hong Kong - have achieved the fastest rates of economic growth the world has ever seen. In 1962 Taiwan stood between Zaire and the Congo on the global ranking of income per head: by 1986 its neighbors were Greece and Malta. In 1962 South Korea was poorer than Sudan: by 1986 it was richer than Argentina. Today the four "dragons" account for 10 per cent of manufactured exports worldwide, not far short of America's 12 per cent. Understanding this miracle is the most urgent task in development economics. But most economists are content to cite the dragons as proof of their favorite theories - whatever those theories may be. Free marketers point to the dragons' reliance on private enterprise, markets and relatively undistorted trade regimes. Interventionists point with equal assurance to clever bureaucracies, non-market allocation of resources and highly distorted trade regimes.

76. According to the passage, the so-called four "dragons" of East Asia ----.

- A) are hoping shortly to outpace Greece and Malta in economic growth
- B) have definitely benefited greatly from a free-trade policy
- C) are presently developing their own free-market strategies
- D) have experienced a staggering and unprecedented economic growth rate over recent decades
- E) have finally managed to throw off bureaucratic obstacles and disprove the theories of many economists

77. It is pointed out in the passage that South Korea, Taiwan, Singapore and Hong Kong ----.

- A) export more to the US than to any other country in the world
- B) have been in fierce competition with each other in the export of manufactured goods
- C) have developed their economies in accordance with the theory of development economics
- D) admit openly that they have made use of various distorted trade regimes
- E) export almost as many manufactured goods between them, as does the US

78. We learn from the passage that, in just over two decades, Taiwan ----.

- A) became the economic model for the other "dragons" on account of its economic success
- B) achieved the fastest rate of economic growth among the four East Asian "dragons"
- C) rose from a low-level per capita income similar to that of Zaire, to a relatively high one
- D) attached far more importance to private enterprise than any other Asian country
- E) was the only one among the "dragons" to exploit its resources to the full

79. According to the passage, there is no unanimous agreement among economists as to ----.

- A) how far distorted trade regimes contributed to the economic success of the four "dragons"
- B) why Taiwan and Hong Kong got ahead of Singapore and South Korea in economic efficiency
- C) whether the growth rate of the four "dragons" will continue steadily
- D) when the four East Asian "dragons" will catch up with the US regarding manufactured exports
- E) how the four East Asian "dragons" achieved their miraculous growth rate

80. It is clear from the passage that the factors leading to the amazing economic growth of the East Asian "dragons" ----.

- A) have not yet been determined by economists
- B) are closely related to distorted trade regimes
- C) are in line with the theories of development economics
- D) should have contributed to the rise of Sudan
- E) have confirmed the importance of political stability

Although women have made huge strides in catching up with men in the workplace, a gender gap still persists both in wages and levels of advancement. Commonly cited explanations for this gap range from charges of sex discrimination to claims that women are more sensitive than men to work versus family conflicts and thus less inclined to make sacrifices for their careers. Now, however, two new studies suggest that another factor may be at work: a deeply ingrained difference in the way men and women react to competition that manifests itself even at an early age. Apparently, females tend to be far less responsive to competition than males - a tendency with important implications for women and business. It may hurt women in highly competitive labor markets, for example, and hamper efficient job placement - especially for positions in which competitiveness is not a useful trait.

81. On the whole, according to the passage, women in the workplace ----.

- A) are content to let the men compete among themselves
- B) inspire a competitive spirit in men
- C) receive the treatment they naturally deserve
- D) have rapidly attained a position approaching that of men
- E) keep themselves up-to-date with developments in the labor market

82. As we learn from the passage, it seems likely that women ----.

- A) are about to rally against the gender gap in the workplace
- B) become seriously concerned, at a very early age, about their future careers
- C) will fight determinedly for their rights in the workplace
- D) will, due to their passive nature, find it hard to get the promotion they deserve
- E) have less of the competitive spirit than men do

83. We understand from the passage that, when a choice has to be made between work and family, ----.

- A) men are less likely, than women to risk their careers
- B) most career women naturally give precedence to work
- C) women expect men to give the priority to the family
- D) it is the women, rather than the men, who find making that choice hard
- E) neither the men nor the women can readily make up their minds

84. According to the passage, in working life today,

- A) women are preferred for certain jobs that require sensitivity
- B) there still exists considerable discrimination against women
- C) men feel they have a right to higher wages and quicker advancement
- D) family concerns are what drive men to work harder and earn more
- E) fair competition is to be encouraged while sex discrimination is to be banned

85. It is clearly pointed out in the passage that the reluctance of women to be competitive ----.

- A) is regarded by men as a desirable trait
- B) is the major factor contributing to the persistence of sex discrimination in the workplace
- C) is clearly seen in the way they care for their families
- D) only becomes apparent when they reach maturity
- E) may prevent them from being appointed to the positions they deserve

The Sahara desert takes up most of Egypt's land, so overcrowding is a huge problem. Sixty-two million people live squeezed together into the six million fertile acres along the Nile delta and narrow river valley - just five per cent of the total area of Egypt. Between 12 and 15 million people live in Cairo alone. Until recently, it was impractical and dangerous to even consider moving into the southern desert, where temperatures regularly rise above 50 C and water is scarce and can only be reached using carefully placed irrigation wells. But in the last 20 years a "New Valley" has slowly been taking shape. Towns with industrial centres, tourist areas and spacious apartment blocks are being constructed, factories are springing up. The main development making this possible is the construction of the vast Sheikh Zayed canal, also known as the Toshka canal. Named for Sheikh Zayed al Nahya, president of the United Arab Emirates, which is financially backing the project, the canal is part of the irrigation scheme dreamed up by the Egyptian government to make it possible for people to move away from the traffic, pollution and bustle of Cairo. If a "second Nile" cuts through the desert and water is distributed to surrounding land, people and crops can thrive there as they do around the existing Nile. The area is becoming known as the New Valley.

86. We understand from the passage that the canal under construction ----.

- A) is designed to meet the water needs of Cairo and other cities
- B) constitutes just a portion of a massive irrigation project
- C) will bring fertility to the whole of the Sahara
- D) will irrigate only 5% of the total area of Egypt
- E) passes through an overcrowded part of the country

87. As it is pointed out in the passage, one of the benefits of the New Valley will be that ----.

- A) Egypt will change from an agricultural country into a fully industrial one
- B) Egypt can at last start a tourist industry
- C) the overcrowding in Cairo and the Nile delta area will be reduced
- D) the hot, dry desert climate of Egypt will be rapidly modified
- E) it will set an example for the developed world to invest in desert projects

88. We can conclude from the passage that the New Valley project, which has been underway for roughly two decades, ----.

- A) was originally proposed by Sheikh Zayed al Nahya of the United Arab Emirates
- B) has already started to transform the economic potential of Egypt
- C) is primarily an agricultural one, and industrial activity is not provided for
- D) is very near to completion and large numbers of people have already moved in
- E) is proving far more problematic than was originally foreseen

89. It is clearly stated in the passage that almost the whole of Egypt's population ----.

- A) lives along the Nile Valley and its delta
- B) wants to move into the New Valley
- C) is engaged in agricultural activities rather than in industrial ones
- D) holds Sheikh Zayed al Nahya in great esteem
- E) is dubious about the outcome of the New Valley project

90. It is pointed out in the passage that the irrigation project for the New Valley ----.

- A) has received a mixed reaction from the general public
- B) is going to cost the Egyptian government vast sums of money
- C) has primarily been designed to ease the overcrowding in Cairo
- D) will enable Egypt to recover from its chronic economic recession
- E) will make the inhospitable desert far more easily accessible

When Lyndon Johnson assumed the presidency, after the assassination of John F. Kennedy, in November of 1963, he knew that in order to accrue political capital he would initially need to champion goals and policies that Kennedy had already been pursuing. Not long before his death Kennedy had scrawled the word "poverty" on a piece of paper and circled it multiple times; this note fell into the hands of his brother Robert and became a symbolic justification for Johnson's declaration of the War on Poverty, early in 1964. Similarly, many of the things that Johnson pushed through Congress in his first two years as President, can readily be seen as extensions of the avowed policies of the Kennedy Administration. The details might have been different, but historians generally agree that if Kennedy had lived out his first term and won a second, America would have witnessed something similar to the early years of Johnson's Great Society. On foreign policy, too, Johnson at first strove consciously to follow his predecessor. And some historians have argued that in this realm as well, Johnson indeed pursued a course that Kennedy had already introduced. If Kennedy had lived, according to this line of thinking, he would have continued a policy of antagonism towards Cuba and steady escalation of US involvement in Vietnam. Johnson certainly believed that this was what Kennedy intended to do.

91. It's clear from the passage that, on assuming the presidency, Johnson ----.

- A) maintained amiable relations with the Kennedys
- B) was determined to put his own policies into effect, and leave his own mark
- C) took great care not to antagonize Congress
- D) was careful not to deviate from Kennedy's policies in international relations
- E) chose to concentrate on foreign policy and ignore domestic issues

92. As we understand from the passage, one of the issues Kennedy was planning to tackle ----.

- A) concerned the improvement of relations between his administration and Congress
- B) concerned bringing to an end the antagonism towards Cuba
- C) related to the ending of the war in Vietnam
- D) was the redefinition of the aims of US foreign policy
- E) was the elimination of poverty in the US

93. It is clear from the passage that initially Johnson intended to continue the Kennedy policies ----.

- A) as far as they were in keeping with the national ideal of a "Great Society"
- B) although in essence they clashed with his own
- C) since he hadn't formulated any of his own
- D) because he sensed this would make him politically popular
- E) but he soon found that they were inapplicable

94. According to the passage, Johnson's pursuit of the Kennedy goals and policies ----.

- A) has been condemned by several recent historians
- B) largely occurred during the first two years of his presidency
- C) actually undermined his image as president
- D) brought him into conflict with Congress
- E) hindered his own desire to wage a War on Poverty

95. The passage makes the point that Johnson became the president of the US ----.

- A) because Kennedy was assassinated
- B) since his policy as regards the War on Poverty was extremely popular
- C) because he supported the war in Vietnam
- D) even though he disagreed with Kennedy on many national and international issues
- E) as he had the support of the Kennedy brothers

The space shuttle and its rockets are huge - some 4.5 million pounds at lift-off. About 85 per cent of that weight is fuel. Since it is designed to work in a vacuum, the shuttle must carry not only fuel but the oxygen to burn it. Because this is an inefficient way to go, NASA engineers have recently tested an engine that gets some of its oxygen on the run. This should reduce takeoff weights by half. A spacecraft equipped with this engine would take off like a rocket. But within minutes, incoming air would begin to supplement liquid oxygen. Once the spacecraft reaches a speed of 1,500 miles per hour - twice the speed of sound - the liquid oxygen would shut off completely and the engine would burn fuel mixed with air. Consequently the craft would accelerate to about ten times the speed of sound. When the air got too thin for the engine to breathe, the ship would shift back to rocket mode to punch its way into space.

96. According to the passage, a new rocket engine is presently being developed to ----.

- A) reach previously unimagined speeds
- B) make space travel more comfortable and feasible
- C) halve the weight of a space shuttle at lift-off
- D) enable NASA to remain in the forefront of space exploration
- E) reduce the physical effects of the atmosphere on the shuttle

97. We learn from the passage that in the usual space shuttle, the weight ----.

- A) makes high speeds impossible
- B) consists very largely of fuel
- C) does not pose any serious problem
- D) of the liquid oxygen is enormous
- E) of the rockets is insignificant

98. As the passage points out, a space shuttle requires oxygen ----.

- A) only when it is travelling within the atmosphere
- B) if it is to attain very high speeds
- C) but only in its liquid form
- D) in order to burn the fuel
- E) in quite small quantities except at lift-off

99. The point is made in the passage that the reason for developing the new engine is to ----.

- A) reduce the time it takes the shuttle to exceed the speed of sound
- B) double the speed at which the shuttle travels
- C) economize on the use of liquid oxygen
- D) eliminate the need for liquid oxygen and thus cut down on the shuttle's weight
- E) allow the shuttle to function in a vacuum

100. It is clear from the passage that, - once there is not sufficient air to burn the fuel, then ----.

- A) the speed of the shuttle increases to over ten times the speed of sound
- B) the engine reverts back to using the liquid oxygen aboard the shuttle
- C) the engine starts to increase the speed of the shuttle
- D) it is impossible for the shuttle to accelerate any further
- E) the rocket can no longer function efficiently
